Ogdensburg, Wis.—"I suffered from female troubles which caused piercing pains like a knife through my back and side. I finally lost all my strength so I had to go to bed. The doctor advised an operation but I would not listen to it. I thought of what I had read about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and tried it. The first bottle brought great relief and six bottles have entirely cured me. All women who have female trouble of any kind should try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound."—Mrs. ETTA DORION, Ogdensburg, Wis.

Physicians undoubtedly did their best, but with this case steadily and could do no more, but often the most scientific treatment is surpassed by the medicinal properties of the good old-fashioned roots and herbs contained in Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

If any complication exists it pays to write the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass., for special free advice.

Neck MassageIt's surprising the number of young girls who show deep wrinkles running across their necks. Wrinkles should only come with age, yet girls of sixteen are often seen withHow about yourself? Are there any lines visible in the front of your neck? Have you a pronounced little lump at the base of the neck in back? Take a hand glass, stand sideways to the mirror and look at your neck line carefully.Premature wrinkles such as these should be massaged out with cold cream or cocoa butter. If neglected they will deepen with time, and when maturity does begin to show they will stand out with alarming prominence upon the throat. For a woman ages in her hands and her throat long before she does in her face.Meantime, keep the head erect.
Stop the habits that have caused the wrinkles in the beginning.
Sleep upon the back, with the head on a very flat pillow, or better yet, upon the mattress itself. And rub a piece of ice on the neck, following the nightly massage. This contracts the pores and tightens up the muscles. This makes the neck firm and the skin fine and soft.
Flabby flesh and wrinkles could be warded off for many years if more women used the daily ice massage.Questions and AnswersWill you advise me whether I can cure a growth of hair about two inches long, at the base of my neck? If there is no harmless method of removing superfluous hair, perhaps you can suggest a simple remedy that will bleach the hair and retard its growth, thus making it less noticeable.—Soleil.Reply—Hair is often induced to grow far down the neck because the hair is worn in a low knot. In some way, hair cultivation inside. If you brush your hair up from the neck, it will stop this tendency to grow on further down the neck.
Meantime, wash the neck with the hair by using tonic on them, till they grow long enough to do up with the rest of the hair. Nothing will bleach the hair without hurting the skin; this is harmful to hair, and might in time cause them to stop growing.

Beatriz Michelena's History of the Motion Picture Industry*CHAPTER VIIIAlmost immediately Robert W.
Paul's manufacture of the Edison kinetoscope, made possible by the American inventor's neglect to protect his device by an English patent, developed into a tremendous business venture. However, it was far from being all smooth sailing. It had its ups and downs and more than once was on the thin edge of failure. It was probably these vicissitudes that cooled the ardor of the two Greeks who first carried the kinetoscope to England. In any event they made an early exit and Paul occupied the stage by himself.The greatest problem that Paul had to face, even after he had developed a world market for his machines, reaching even to New Zealand, Japan and South America, was that of film supply. For this he was dependent entirely on the output of "Black Maria," the fantastic name by which Edison's first crude motion picture studio was known.Finally two agents of this first American producer, who had secured the exclusive control of both his kinetoscope and his film for the European market, conceived what they believed to be a brilliant idea. They would obviate the neglected English patent procedure by refusing to sell films for any machine other than that of Edison's own make.

This was quite enough to cause Paul consternation. It threatened not only to despoil his future trade, but also to work irreparable hardship upon his previous customers. The only escape that suggested itself was the invention, on his part, of a motion picture camera and the manufacture of his own pictures. He had no model to go by, but, through patience and long experiment, was eventually successful.

However, the quest, including the manufacture of several ineffectual devices before he finally hit upon the practical one, ate up the larger part of the small fortune he had made from his previous sale of kinetoscopes.As future events proved, it was, in spite of its temporary hazard, a profitable investment, principally because his successful invention of a camera saved Paul a zest for further experiments. Long before this it had occurred to the Londoner that a motion picture device, like the kinetoscope, would be much more profitable, if several people could see the pictures at once. This gave him a problem on which his brain was half subconsciously working one evening when he sat as a spectator at a stereopticon entertainment. As he watched the various photographic views of still life thrown on the screen the idea came to him in a flash, why not apply this same principle to motion pictures?Paul went home to begin his experiments next day upon what eventually resulted in one of the first, if not the very first projection machine ever devised. Mr. Talbot, an English author and consequently a compatriot of the inventor, maybe prompted somewhat by loyalty to British blood in declaring Paul's the first of the several projecting devices perfected at about the same time. I quote as follows from Mr. Talbot's book:"About 3 o'clock one morning, in the early months of 1895, the quietness of Hulton Garden was disturbed by loud and prolonged shouts. The police rushed hurriedly to the building whence the cries proceeded and found Paul and his colleagues in their workshop, giving vent to whole-hearted exuberance of triumph. They had just succeeded in throwing the first perfect animated pictures upon the screen. To compensate the police for their fruitless investigation, the film, which was 40 feet long and produced a picture seven feet square, was run through the special lantern for their edification. They regarded the strange spectacle as ample compensation and the satisfaction of being the first members of the public to see moving pictures thrown upon the screen."Other writers are not so entirely positive as Talbot that Paul's was the first projection machine. Undoubtedly several persons, in different corners of the world, were working at this time toward the same end, and were almost contemporaneous one with the other in reaching possibly satisfactory results. It is obvious that none of these persons realized even a fractional part of the real importance of the work they had done. But although they did not know it, they had insured the future of motion pictures on a tremendously extensive scale.Best Eyes, Granulated Eyelids, Eyes cupsful sugar, three-fourths cupful of milk, one teaspoonful of butter, three tablespoonfuls of cocoa, one-half teaspoonful of vanilla and three-fourths cupful of walnuts, cut into pieces. Boil all the ingredients together until when a little of the mixture is dropped into cold water, it forms a firm, soft ball. It should not make a stiff ball, but should rather be like a soft gum in consistency. Remove from the fire, add vanilla and beat hard until the mixture becomes creamy and begins to thicken. Add walnuts and quickly pour into a buttered pan. Mark into squares while soft, but do not cut clear through until cold.BUTTER SCOTCHUse two cupsful of sugar, two tea-spoonfuls of water and one rounded tablespoonful of butter. Put the sugar, water and butter into the pan on the fire and stir until melted. Stop stirring as soon as the mixture is melted and allow it to boil until a little dropped into cold water will harden. Pour into a greased pan, and, when cool mark off into squares. Wrap each square in oiled paper.WOMEN SHOULD vivacious—a good clear skin; a natural, rosy complexion and freedom from illness are assured only by clean, healthy blood. If only every woman and likewise every man could realize the wonders of the morning inside-bath, what a gratifying change would take place.Instead of the thousands of sickly, anaemic-looking men, women and girls with pasty or muddy complexions; instead of the multitudes of "nerve wrecks," "run-downs," "brain fags" and pessimists we should see a virile, optimistic throng of rosy-cheeked people everywhere.An inside bath is had by drinking, each morning before breakfast, a glass of real hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it to wash from the stomach, liver, kidneys and ten yards of bowels the previous day's indigestible waste, sour fermentations and poisons, thus cleansing, sweetening and freshening the entire alimentary canal before putting more food into the stomach.Those subject to sick, headache, biliousness, nasty breath, rheumatism, colds; and particularly those who have a pallid, sallow complexion and who are constipated very often, are urged to obtain a quarter pound of limestone phosphate at the drug store which will cost but a trifle but is sufficient to demonstrate the quick and remarkable change in both health and appearance awaiting those who practise internal sanitation. We must remember that inside cleanliness is more important than outside, because the skin does not absorb impurities to contaminate the blood, while the pores in the thirty feet of bowels do.—Adv.Shingle's Bill, relating to appropriations from the general revenues for
